

Communication challenges which foster relationship building

- † When talking with one other person, stand at an angle in a V shape - an open invitation for others to join you.
- † When visiting in a group larger than two, form a horse shoe shape rather than a circle - as others join you in visiting, re-adjust to the horseshoe shape, keeping the group open.
- † Practice listening - not constructing your answer while someone is sharing with you. Ask questions, this invites deeper sharing.
- † Avoid judgments. Look past barriers to the person God created. Keep this a priority when visiting in the public square, too.
- † Strive to find out at least 5 things you did not know about the person.
- † During breaks, visit with at least three people you do not know first. Then if time, visit with your friends - find 5 unknowns about them, too.
- † Invite someone you do not know to join you at a meal time break or visit with them while traveling to and from the convention center.
- † Interact with the public using these same challenges.

Communication challenges which foster relationship building

- † When talking with one other person, stand at an angle in a V shape - an open invitation for others to join you.
- † When visiting in a group larger than two, form a horse shoe shape rather than a circle - as others join you in visiting, re-adjust to the horseshoe shape, keeping the group open.
- † Practice listening - not constructing your answer while someone is sharing with you. Ask questions, this invites deeper sharing.
- † Avoid judgments. Look past barriers to the person God created. Keep this a priority when visiting in the public square, too.
- † Strive to find out at least 5 things you did not know about the person.
- † During breaks, visit with at least three people you do not know first. Then if time, visit with your friends - find 5 unknowns about them, too.
- † Invite someone you do not know to join you at a meal time break or visit with them while traveling to and from the convention center.
- † Interact with the public using these same challenges.

